HERITAGE AND HISTORY

Settled in 1831, York is Western Australia's first inland town. We bet you didn't know that convicts came to WA due to the York Agricultural Society petitioning the Colonial Government to allow the introduction of convict labour!

Many of York's historic buildings date from the 1890's goldrush years when York was the last stop before the trek to the Coolgardie goldfields. It was a heyday period of prosperity and optimism when farming wealth was invested in business ventures. York Town Hall, built in 1911, typifies this boom time. Classified as of National significance, its imposing façade hides an even more stunning interior, with more pressed tin ceilings than you can possibly imagine!
